

RINGLING CIRCUS FIRE FATAL TO NEARLY 200

Yanks and Nazis In Hard Battle In La Haye Area

Americans Forced Out of One Section

By JAMES M. LONG

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Friday, July 7 (AP)—United States troops closing a ring about the enemy anchor of La Haye Du Puits have stormed to the edge of the Forest De Mont Castre—where strong enemy forces lie in wait—and are threatening the last wooded heights dominating the town, supreme headquarters announced last night.

Front line dispatches said the only escape route out of the road and rail junction on the south was under artillery fire, and reported savage fighting toward the heights of the forest, three miles east of La Haye, whose capture would unhinge enemy defenses resting on La Haye on the west and the bog, Marais De Gorges, on the east.

Give Up Rail Station

The Americans relinquished their hold on the railway station in the north part of La Haye.

In the brightest, hottest day in Normandy since D-Day, another column coming around the great bog on the east fought down the road southwest from Carentan, winning this narrowest sector of the whole Normandy front in an advance of more than a mile despite enemy counterattacks.

Both British and Germans poured armor and infantry into the battle raging for Carpentier airfield, only three miles east of Caen on the west to Paris, and the night commander said a number of enemy tanks were destroyed.

Air Conditions Improve

With the skies clearing at last, and the Allies free to throw their Sunday aerial punch at the enemy, German communications took a severe mauling as hundreds of warplanes were bombing and strafing transport, roads and rail all the way behind the front and on back to the Paris area.

Rail lines, we're cut by bombs at many points, fuel dumps were left blazing at Chartres, Argentan and Caen, and dive-bombers attacked troops massing to oppose the American push southwestward from Carpentier.

A dispatch from Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, advanced command post declared that more and more Allied troops and vehicles—"an astonishing total"—were piling up along the beachhead for the decisive battle ahead.

Americans Forced Back

Germans, deployed in the rubble heaps of ruined La Haye, forced the Americans to retire from the railway station.

This station fell yesterday, but front-line dispatches said the Americans retired to positions on the northern outskirts to await developments on the flanks, rather than put their heads into strong enemy defenses in the heart of the city.

British and Canadians around Caen battled the greater mass of German manpower ever concentrated on a narrow front in this or the last world war—one division to slightly less than three miles of front, supreme headquarters said.

The German news agency DNB said Field Marshal Karl Rudolf Gerd von Rundstedt, German commander in the west, had been replaced by Marshal Günther von Kluge, counter-offensive specialist from the Russian front, possibly presaging a heavy counter blow. DNB said von Rundstedt was in "ill health."

Nothing To Lose, Goebbels

LONDON, July 6 (AP)—The Berlin radio tonight quoted German Propaganda Minister Dr. Paul Josef Goebbels as saying the Germans no longer could be shaken by this war because "we have lost too much courage and the nation is in a state where the last reserves are bare."

The broadcast quoted the propaganda chief as telling the Germans that as a people they now should be most dangerous, "because we have burned our bridges and have nothing more to lose. This no longer is a war that may end in victory or defeat—it is a war at the end of which there will be for us either no world at all or a new world."

Great Air Fleet Blasts Continent

Germany, France And Italy Bombed

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR

LONDON, July 6 (AP)—More than 3,000 Allied heavy bombers—the greatest number hurled at Europe in a single day—struck enemy installations in Germany, France and Italy from two directions today while thousands of tactical warplanes mauled German transport and supplies in a 9,000 square mile triangle below the Normandy battlefield.

Thirty-two enemy planes were shot down; fourteen Allied planes were lost as the Allies filled the skies with 6,000 sorties, including five separate attacks which unloaded more than 6,000 tons of explosives on the robot bomb roosts around Pas-De-Calais.

Press Two-Way Attacks

The Germans reported the Allied air raiders were pressing their two-way attacks around the clock, launching raids for flying bombs, Germany after nightfall and returning west, while others swung over the upper and lower Danube and then flew south, probably back to Italian bases.

About 1,000 United States Fortresses and Liberators attacked the launching ramps for flying bombs and other objectives at Pas-De-Calais in the most savage assault of the day—a day in which Prime Minister Churchill told the world of the thousands of casualties these robot rovers were causing in London.

In the second American attack of the day on Pas-De-Calais, Flying Fortresses and Liberators struck six flying bomb launching sites this evening and pounded three rail bridges over the Loire river southwest of Orleans. An escort of up to 750 fighters bombed eighteen launching ramps and every bomber returned.

All bombers were down visually in this fourteenth daylight attack by heavy bombers on robot roosts since D-Day one month ago. Photographs showed the targets were well hit. The raid followed a blow on these nests in the forenoon by the RAF heavyweights under Spitfire escort. One British bomber was lost.

RAF Bombers Attack

During the afternoon and again at dusk RAF bombers and fighters heavily battered flying bomb installations and other military objectives in Northern France.

The weather was clear over Pas-De-Calais for the first time since June 24, and the American heavy bombers made the most of it. Heavies with an escort of up to 750 fighters bombed eighteen launching ramps and every bomber returned.

German Troops Halt Advance Of Americans

Yanks Temporarily Delayed in Italy

By JOHN F. CHESTER

ROME, July 6 (AP)—Counter-attacking German troops, backed by heavy concentrations of artillery, have temporarily halted the progress of American forces up the Italian west coast at a point some ten miles from the port of Livorno, but the British Eighth army continued today to hammer out gains near the center of the line on the approaches to Florence.

Doughboys, climbing to approximately half the smoking town of Rosignano, a few miles inland from the coast below Livorno, were reported to have thrown back four furious assaults by the Nazis within twenty-four hours, inflicting heavy casualties on the enemy.

Hard Days Ahead

It was plain now that the last miles into Livorno would be extremely hard going for Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark's men, who were meeting their first sustained resistance since the fall of Rome. The Germans along the coastal sector had plenty of firepower from guns up to 170-millimeters and were laying it on the Americans from commanding heights.

Five miles east of Rosignano there was bitter fighting in the outskirts of Castellina, Casole d'Elsa, eleven miles southeast of Volterra, was firmly in Allied hands after several days of savage fighting.

An official spokesman said "the enemy is particularly nervous about Fifth army movements and is keeping all highways under constant artillery fire."

Eighth army forces lunging northward from Lake Trasimeno through mud and elaborate German demolitions won positions within three miles of the important road center of Arezzo, thirty-six miles southeast of Florence, and in a flanking drive to the west threatened to cut the main highway between Arezzo and Florence.

French Colonials on the Fifth army's inland wing thrust out some eight miles north and west of captured Siena and were engaged in stiff fighting at Abbadia and on Monte Risigione to the northwest. Further west they cut highway sixty-eight between Volterra and Colle Di Val d'Elsa.

Crush Nazi Resistance

Indian units crushed determined German resistance and reached the outskirts of Umbertide, an important highway junction in the Tiber valley fourteen miles north of Perugia. Polish troops were reported engaged in bitter fighting eight miles south of Ancona on the Adriatic coast after capturing the towns of Badia, San Sabino and Castel-Fidardo.

Italy-based planes flew about 1,200 sorties yesterday, including attacks by heavy bombers on targets in Southern France. Ten heavy bombers and another craft were lost and three enemy fighters were destroyed. Last night RAF bombers struck at rail yards at Verona in Northern Italy.

Patterson Sees Bad Days for the Nazis

WASHINGTON, July 6 (AP)—The Anglo-American armies in Normandy are approaching the point where they will hit the Nazis with four times the amount of high explosives and projectiles which the enemy is able to deliver, acting Secretary of War Robert H. Patterson said today.

"It is fire-power that wins wars," he added. "Fire power is the killing end of the business." Patterson said that included small arms, grenades, mortars, artillery, rockets and airplane bombs.

These enormous quantities of metal and explosives will be given to our troops "to throw at our enemies, both on the continent and in the Pacific," Patterson asserted.

American Attacks Kill 62 Priests, Brothers and Nuns Aboard Jap Ship

CHICAGO, July 6 (AP)—A bishop and sixty-two Catholic priests, brothers and nuns being transported in a Japanese internment boat off the coast of New Guinea were killed last Feb. 6 by a strafing attack from American Mitchell bombers.

The Rev. Anthony May, mission procurator of the monastery of the Divine Word at suburban Techny, said today.

His announcement said the sisters made frantic pleas for permission to signal off the American attackers, but the Japanese denied the pleas.

He said those killed included the bishop, the Most Rev. Bishop Francis Wolf, S.V.D., eight priests, and eighteen brothers, all of the society, and thirty-six nuns of the sister servants of the Holy Ghost, whose American headquarters also are at Techny.

There were 146 missionaries in the group being transported up the coast in the boat, he said.

Gen. De Gaulle Visiting FDR

Meets President At White House

WASHINGTON, July 6 (AP)—General Charles De Gaulle and President Roosevelt clapped hands at the White House and exchanged warm greetings today at a meeting preliminary to man-to-man conferences aimed at smoothing out frictions in French-American relations.

"My, I'm glad to see you," was Mr. Roosevelt's welcome. Arriving by airplane in mid-afternoon, the tall leader of the French National committee was accorded a welcome such as has been given few foreign dignitaries not classed as heads of state.

17-Gun Salute Fired

The high command of the army and navy greeted him when he stepped from his plane while a seventeen-gun salute—in accord with his military rank—boomed out from a battery of cannon.

Then the French general was whisked by automobile to the White House where President Roosevelt and members of the cabinet were waiting in the diplomatic reception room.

When De Gaulle entered, the president was seated before a huge fireplace. Standing behind the chief executive was his daughter, Mrs. Anna Boettiger.

Meets Cabinet Officers. Their greeting over, the general was presented to Secretary of State Hull who said, "welcome—glad to have you with us."

De Gaulle appeared only slightly fatigued by his air journey. After he passed along the line of cabinet officers, President Roosevelt called to him:

"Come over here. I think they want to take your picture." The general posed with the president and Mrs. Boettiger.

Mrs. Roosevelt Absent. The president explained that Mrs. Roosevelt was at Hyde Park, N. Y. Speaking in French, De Gaulle asked Mr. Roosevelt how he was feeling and the president replied he feels much better since his recent vacation in Southern California.

The city, just thirty-six miles from the 1939 line which Germany launched its war against the Russians, had been two-thirds encircled since the ridge of the Soviet winter offensive.

Dewey Will Win, Says Vandenberg

ALBANY, N. Y., July 6 (AP)—Arriving for a conference with Governor Thomas F. Dewey on domestic and foreign policy issues, Senator Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan predicted tonight the Republican would obtain more than 300 electoral votes in the November election.

A total of 266 votes is necessary for election of a presidential ticket. Vandenberg, who is chairman of the Senate Republican conference and one of the authors of the party's "Mackinac" statement on foreign policy, said he thought he and the Republican presidential nominee were in "entire agreement" on foreign affairs.

Declining to specify which states he thought the Republicans would carry, Vandenberg said he believed he had been "conservative" in estimating the ticket headed by Dewey and including Governor John W. Bricker of Ohio as the vice-presidential candidate would be victorious by a substantial margin in the November balloting.

Many Children Are Victims of Fearful Tragedy

Witnesses Report Terrible Scenes

HARTFORD, CONN., July 6 (AP)—A burst of flames in the main tent of the Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey circus brought death to at least 120 persons, many of them children, and horrible injury to many others in a disaster, which officials said might ultimately result in a death toll of 200.

State Police Commissioner Edward J. Hickey, one of the 6,000 spectators in the gay audience when the first tiny flame was discovered minutes after the opening animal act, placed the number of deaths at between 175 to 200, while Clifford Fowler of the American Red Cross said in New York City he had been advised that more than 200 had perished.

Armory Used as Morgue. By 8:15 p. m. (est.) the huge drill shed of the state armory, quickly converted into a morgue, contained the bodies of 120 men, women and children, many of whom were trapped under the fiery canvas as it collapsed at 2:45 p. m.

The problem of identifying the dead was great. Many if not most of the bodies were charred beyond recognition and the filmy garments worn by women and children offered little immediate hope of establishing identity. Only through a long and tenuous process of elimination were many expected to be given names.

One hospital reported an incomplete count showed forty-one injured, while another hospital said that at least thirty children had been admitted.

In the midst of the disaster, more terrifying because of the sudden panic it created than even the flood of 1936 and the hurricane and flood which struck this city in 1938, Governor Raymond E. Baldwin made a radio appeal for calmness as he directed mobilization of all the state emergency facilities.

State Guard Mobilized. Neighborhood drugstores were converted into temporary first aid stations, the state guard was mobilized to restore order and aid in the rescue work, blood plasma was flown here from Boston and soldiers were detailed to the scene from the Bradley Army air field in nearby Windsor Locks.

Had Over press representative for the circus, termed the fire the "first great fire in the whole history of Ringling Brothers circus," and estimated the damage to circus property at $300,000.

Over said the cause of the fire was undetermined, but expressed the belief it started most likely from a cigarette, intentional or accidental, dropped by someone sitting in the upper rows of seats.

By witnesses' groped for words to describe the scene of horror which quickly unfolded before them as the first flame described by one as so small that it "could have been put out with a pail of water," quickly became a lethal, fiery weapon.

Above the roar of frightened animals could be heard the frantic calls of mothers seeking their children and the furious crackling of flames as they first quickly enveloped the big tent and then sent the canvas to the ground in ruins.

Paul Gokey of Hartford, who fled from the big top without injury, said:

"Spread Awfully Fast." "It was only a little blaze when it started—it could have been put out with a pail of water. Suddenly, I saw that little flame starting in the sidewall about seventy-five feet from the entrance. It spread awfully fast—right up to the top. Everybody was trying to get out at once. It was a terrible scene. People were knocked down, and other people walked on them. Outside there was tremendous confusion."

Another eye witness, Policeman Arthur Bernard, who lives just across from the circus grounds, said "so many kids were hurt because the flaming tent dropped right on them."

"They shinnied down the ropes and poles," he said. "Some of them were laughing and excited."

"Secret Weapon V-2" May Be Next To Be Tried Out by the Germans

LONDON, June 6 (AP)—The Germans followed up Prime Minister Churchill's report to the nation on the rocket bomb with threats that embattled London would be hit next with "secret weapon V-2" which progress has been made with giant strides.

"The path from the artillery shell to V-1 (vengeance weapon No. 1, the flying bomb) was long," said George Schreier, a German Transatlantic correspondent. "But the development of the next secret weapon, V-2, is progressing with giant strides."

"Germany is aiming to step up in the shortest time these attacks against military targets in Southern England until the same number of missiles is dropped on English areas as Germany and her Allies hitherto received from the Allies."

German broadcasts claimed the anti-robot defenses were ineffective. At the same time they depicted the suffering of German cities under what they described as "the Allies new phosphorus bomb which starts many fires simultaneously."

DNB reported a foreign official spokesman said the Churchill statement given last confirmation of the seriousness and the extent of the effects of the German V-1 weapons—and of great threat which has crippled the population in England."

Hannegan Names Committees for Convention Jobs

Confident Roosevelt Will Consent To Run

By H. HAROLD OLIVER
Associated Press Staff Writer

Rep. John W. McCormack of Massachusetts, House majority leader, last night named chairman of a resolutions subcommittee to conduct hearings on a 1944 Democratic party platform prior to the national convention opening July 19 in Chicago.

The hearings are expected to start July 17 in Chicago with Rep. Mary T. Norton of New Jersey, chairman of the House Labor committee, sitting as subcommittee co-chairman. She will be the first woman accorded this honor.

The subcommittee, appointed by National Chairman Robert E. Hannegan, is composed of twelve men and eleven women.

Subcommittee Named
Besides McCormack, the subcommittee is made up of Senators Robert F. Wagner (N.Y.), resolutions chairman in 1936 and 1940; Carl A. Hatch (N.M.); Joseph G. O'Mahoney (W.V.); Harry S. Truman (Mo.); Claude Pepper (Fla.); Theodore F. Green (R.I.); and James M. Tamm (Del.). Rep. Thomas D'Alesandro Jr. (Md.); Joseph Daniels, former Navy secretary and ambassador to Mexico; George J. Burke, Michigan lawyer and former general counsel of OPA, and Rep. Ed. V. Iaco of California.

Women Members
The women members besides Mrs. Norton are Mrs. Fred Vinson, Kentucky, wife of the economic stabilization director; Mrs. Nellie Taylor Ross, Wyoming, director of the mint; Mrs. Julia Porter, California; Miss Doris I. Byrne, New York; Mrs. W. T. Bost, North Carolina; Mrs. Albert E. Hill, Tennessee; Mrs. Scott Stewart, Utah; Mrs. Lucille Stewart, Kansas; Mrs. Charles G. Ryan, Nebraska, and Mrs. Sue Bubel, Oklahoma.

While the Washington headquarters of the national committee made the subcommittee announcement, Hannegan at a news conference in Columbus, O., expressed the belief that President Roosevelt would put aside "personal desire" and run for a fourth term.

Hannegan indicated the party platform would be somewhat shorter than the 4,000 word set of principles adopted at the 1940 convention, when he said the Democrats would base their 1944 campaign on "past performance."

"Brilliant Record"
"We've made a brilliant record in the past twelve years," he declared, "and we propose to let the people compare that with the promises of our opponents."

The committee chairman listed eight prospects for the vice-presidential nomination: Vice-President Henry A. Wallace, Speaker Sam Rayburn, Senators Alben W. Barkley (Ky.); Harry S. Truman (Mo.); War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes, Gov. J. Melville Broughton, North Carolina, and Robert S. Kerr, Oklahoma, and Manpower Commission Paul V. McNutt.

The day's political doings also embraced the White House with a call on President Roosevelt by Edward J. Flynn, former Democratic national chairman who will attend the convention as New York national committeeman and a delegate, and the return to work after a long absence, because of illness of Harry L. Hopkins, presidential aide.

Flynn, who also talked with Judge Samuel Rosenman, presidential adviser, said a new chairman of the New York State Democratic Committee will be selected Tuesday to succeed James A. Farley, who recently resigned.

Americans Take Manim Island

ADVANCED ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, NEW GUINEA, Friday, July 7 (AP)—United States troops have occupied Manim island off American-invaded Noemfoor island, headquarters announced today.

Manim was seized July 5 without opposition. Its occupation provides a flank position for the one remaining Japanese-held airdrome on Noemfoor. That airdrome, Number 1, is the present objective of United States forces driving across Noemfoor, off North Dutch New Guinea.

The two other Noemfoor airdromes—Kamiri and Komasoran—already are in American hands. A Japanese counter attack on Noemfoor was repulsed, headquarters reported.

Allied air raiders sank three small Japanese vessels and damaged one, continuing their widespread attacks against Japanese shipping in waters near New Guinea. Sixteen barges also have been sunk or damaged.

The Noemfoor invasion began Sunday when American forces landed after crossing the encircling reef. Kamiri airdrome was captured in less than two hours. Airborne troops augmented the original invading force and Komasoran airdrome was taken July 4.

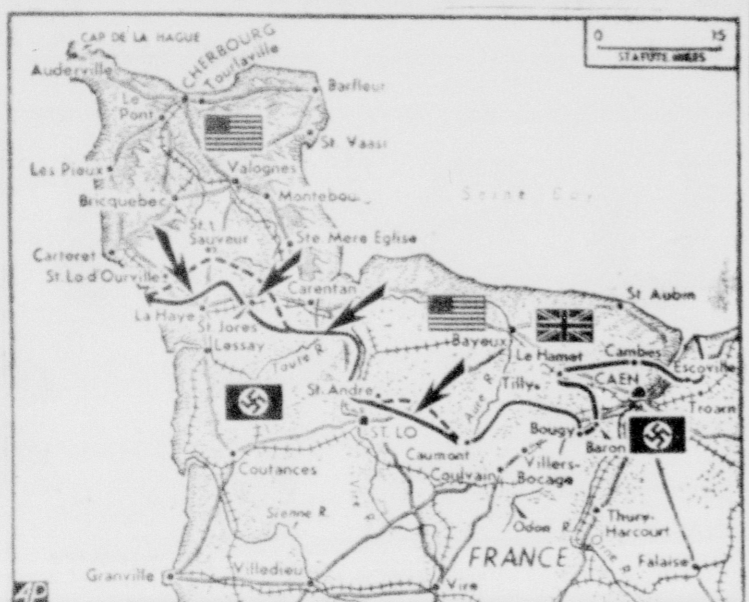

Noemfoor island guards the entrance to Geelvink bay and contains air bases within 800 miles of the Philippines.

"Escaped Germans" Are Boy Scouts
FREDERICK, Md., July 6 (AP)—Two persons who state police were informed answered generally the descriptions of two German war prisoners who escaped from the Gettysburg, Pa., camp, were identified today by Deputy Sheriff R. Paul Buhrman as boy scouts.

Notified this morning that "strangers" were in the vicinity of Hanoverville, Buhrman talked with them and inspected their credentials. They told him they had been traveling about the county and sleeping out at night spending the last night at Walkersville from where they were first reported to state police.

Sgt. Charles V. Main had four troopers assigned to search for the "prisoners," Buhrman said the boys were from Brunswick.

Ringling Circus Fire Is Fatal To Nearly 200; Many Children

was about to quit the circus grounds after leaving his wife and child at the big tent when he saw the burst of flames that signalled the start of a terrifying pandemonium.

Tent Soon Consumed
The tent, he said, "went up in a puff of smoke," and within ten minutes it lay "like burnt paper as far as I could see."

"I saw rows of charred bodies lying between the burned bleachers," said Wilson, who did not learn until some time later that his wife and son had escaped safely. "They showed no evidence of being trampled on, but were scorched and burned. The heat was intense and women and children were running out of the grounds. Men were crying for their children. There was a terrible howling and screaming and panic."

Many were killed and injured, eyewitnesses said, in the rush for the exits which came even as the band began playing to allay the fears of the thousands inside the big top. In contrast, others said, circus employees went quietly and swiftly to work saving the animals and trying to restore calm.

All Animals Saved
Over reported that all of the animals were saved. Most accounts of the tragedy agreed on one point, that the fire small at the start, spread with amazing rapidity.

Everett Dow, a Hartford Courant reporter, who was in the audience said the danger was first grasped by spectators remote from the fire. Those closest to it seemed momentarily stupefied and incredulous. But only for an instant or two. Then they joined the rush for exits, a race many of them were destined not to win.

Thomas E. Murphy, another Courant editorial man, who was present, described in graphic terms the odds against which scores struggled to escape across a steel barrier protecting a wild animal runway from the big top.

Runway Bars Escape
The runway was still in place when fire broke out and it barred the way to those seeking to escape in that direction.

"I was slammed against the steel barrier and my knee caught momentarily between the bars," said Murphy. "Then taking my five year old son in my hands, I tossed him over the barrier to the ground beyond. The flames at this point were nearly overhead and the heat was becoming unbearable."

"I looked back over my shoulder as I left the tent and saw people still struggling madly to get over the barriers."

As eye-witness accounts continued to be piled together many poignant details of the frenzied minutes when thousands tried to flee possible cremation, came to light.

Many Shriek In Fear
One man said the din of shouting and shrieking as crescendo of fear welled up from the throng was deafening. It mingled, he said, with the crash of falling grandstand chairs.

Scores of men, women and children tried with varying success to jump from high seats. Many children were dropped bodily from elevated seats to make their way as best they could to safety.

"Their cries," said a reporter who was himself almost caught in the mass, were "awful to hear."

For many of these children, however, there was no escape as fire enveloped them.

As soon as Commissioner Hickey, who succeeded in shepherding a party of nine children he had brought to the circus to the outside, could get state police marshalled, lanes were cleared through to the city's three hospitals.

As the injured were sped to hos-

More Buzz Bombs Hit London Area

Larger Area May Be Used Soon

By WES GALLAGHER

LONDON, Friday, July 7 (AP)—More flying bombs smashed into the London area last night after a lull of several hours and while rescuers still dug for victims from Thursday morning's barrage—some of them mill workers trapped under fifty tons of debris.

The air ministry said there were casualties but less damage than in the morning attack, and that defenders had one of their best days by downing "a large proportion" of the robots.

Grim Londoners are paying in blood to watch the birth of a new era in air power—the flying bomb now and perhaps later the giant rocket bomb—in the opinion of many veteran airmen.

Future Implications
The death and damage the flying bombs now are doing are only a fraction of the dreadful implications they carry. From the time that Hitler began to use them won by killing enough of the enemy to break his will to fight, and robot weapons of the future conceivably will be able to accomplish this end.

This does not mean that the Germans can achieve this during the present war. They have thanks partly to British intelligence and Allied air forces and partly to the slowness of scientific development, brought forth their weapon too late, and it has not reached the full stage of its development.

If Hitler had had his flying bomb in 1940, the story quite likely would have been different. Now he is engaged in great struggles on three fronts and losing on all of them. He cannot use the weapon effectively against Russia.

Londoners remember that the flying bomb was not born over night. It probably took fifteen or more years to develop to its present stage of efficiency, which means that German minds even before the Hitler era were working on terror weapons to attack cities—London in particular—because the bomb would outreach ground forces.

Possibilities of the bomb's development are unlimited, and no one, not even in America, 3,000 miles away, will be safe ten or maybe even five years from now.

This weapon may have been the reason why the Germans did not invade England. Some think Hitler, knowing the weapons were nearing a stage where they could be used, felt he could defeat England with them, and turned his manpower against Russia.

lively against armies that are throwing his regime, because it has not been developed in quantity and accuracy enough for use on the battlefield.

Many Have Other Weapons
All he can do is lob death into London until the Allied armies overrun his launching sites and force him back from the coast. How long this will be no one can say, because Hitler is known to have other vengeance weapons than the "V-1."

The best information indicates that the flying, jet-propelled bomb has a big brother, a rocket bomb, which carries five or more tons of explosives up to a height of 40,000 feet, whence it drops straight down.

A big launching site, captured at Cherbourg, was designed for this weapon, and it was aimed at London. Five tons of explosives dropping 40,000 feet probably would destroy any building—even a skyscraper.

Hitler's new terror weapon is creating a vast hate for the Germans, but not even the blitzkrieg. But aside from the deep hatred, the chief reaction of London folk is not terror but rather one of annoyance with the government for not taking more adequate steps to deal with the problem of the buzz-bomb in advance, and disappointment over lack of visible retaliation.

Fifth War Loan Drive Nears Goal

WASHINGTON, July 6 (AP)—The $16,000,000,000 Fifth War Loan drive has moved to within four per cent of its quota.

The treasury announced today that sales through yesterday were $15,364,000,000.

Corporations and non-banking investors subscribed $11,454,000,000—115 per cent of their quota. Sales to individuals aggregated $3,910,000,000 or sixty-five per cent of their quota.

The drive, which opened June 12, will close Saturday.

Another American task force of about 250 Liberators crossed the North Sea and hammered Germany's big Baltic naval base at Kiel, while another heavy formation of at least that strength pounded Nazi air fields in France, seventy of which have been hit since D-Day along with seventeen in other enemy territory.

Although the weather over Germany was good, the Liberators encountered no enemy fighters in sixty-five hour flights pasting this year.

Potato Beetles Can Be Controlled, Farm Agent Says

McHenry Reports Unusually Heavy Infestation of Flea Beetle

This is the seventh in a series of articles on plant insects and diseases prepared for the benefit of victory gardeners by Ralph F. McHenry, county farm agent.

Some insects and diseases that attack Irish potatoes and peppers should be discussed.

The adult Colorado potato beetle, a chewing insect, is a large beetle with alternating black and yellow stripes. The larvae are soft-bodied and reddish orange in color, shaped similarly to the adult.

Spray with a material containing an arsenical. Pyrox is a good one, or dust with a calcium-arsenate-copper-lime dust. When spraying, use amounts recommended on the packages you buy. Make the first application when the beetles first appear and repeat weekly three or four times.

Heavy Infestation
The flea beetle, a chewing insect, is a small, black insect about the size of a pin head. It jumps when disturbed and eats tiny holes in the plant. It seems to detect poison and will leave the plant rather than eat it. The spray or dust acts as a repellent.

Spray with an arsenical such as pyrox or dust with arsenate-copper-lime dust. Repeat two or three times.

They are particularly destructive when the plants are small. There seems to be an unusually heavy infestation of flea beetle in Allegany county already. They are attacking young tomato plants and some other early vegetables as well as potatoes. A little puff of arsenate-copper-lime dust will keep them off.

With late blight, a fungus disease, water-soaked, dark brown to black fast-growing spots appear on leaves and stems. Dark, lead-colored spots appear on tubers with brick red to chocolate brown flesh beneath the spots. Tubers are affected with either a dry or wet rot.

Must Act Quickly
Spray with Bordeaux mixture or dust with copper lime dust. The disease usually makes its appearance in this county during August and September and in wet years. Do not harvest the crop until the vines are dead and the ground is dry. If insects are present use arsenate-copper-lime dust. One must be quick and apply this material when the disease first starts. A delay of twenty-four hours may mean failure. There is no cure for the disease. The fungicide protects the plant and keeps it from spreading.

P. E. Operating Report Shows Costs Higher

Operating expenses for the first five months of 1944 increased nearly 20 per cent, President R. Paul Smith told the board of directors of the Potomac Edison Company at the recent quarterly meeting in Frederick.

The largest increase, he reported, occurred in the cost of coal consumed at generating stations. Coal costs for the five months increased $178,336.66 and for the past twelve months now total $1,504,994.11, he said.

It continues to be quite difficult to keep operating expenses in line with revenues received, Mr. Smith declared. Taxes this year are higher, he said, largely because of the higher federal income tax rates.

The output of the company's generating plants for the first six months of this year was 11.7 per cent greater than the first six months of 1943. This was called partly due to increased usage of the regular peacetime customers and partly due to a few customers who have come onto the utility's lines as an outgrowth of the war.

The output of the company's hydro plants shows an increase of about seven per cent during the first six months, reflecting more rainfall as compared with the first half of 1943, he said. The record one-hour output for the company's customers occurred June 20, 1944, and was 95,700 kilowatts.

The total number of customers served with electricity at May 31 showed an increase of 1,660 as compared with a year ago, he said. Some extensions to serve farm customers are being built as regulations and available materials permit.

He reported that in the first five months of 1944, the company hauled fewer passengers than during the same period a year ago and much of the overloading and congestion in terminals no longer exists. Nine city-type buses have been purchased for the western division of the Blue Ridge Lines.

He said the company had purchased two electric locomotives to insure adequate service to the salvage depot at Frederick, where additional trackage has recently been installed and where the volume of freight handled continues to increase. Railway revenues, he reported, however, continue to be small in comparison with revenues from the operation of the bus system.

He reported 257 employees of the company in military service, one of whom has been reported killed and two missing in action.

Cumberlanders attending the meeting were Owen E. Hitchins and John J. McMullen, directors, and Henry W. Price, Cumberland district manager.

The Proposed Appeals Court Reorganization

WHEN the bill reorganizing the Court of Appeals of Maryland as submitted by the Bond commission was finally enacted by the General Assembly in March, 1943, this newspaper stated that it was "only slightly modified" from the original draft. That conclusion appears to have been clouded by partial information on the final draft given to the public as according to an extensive study prepared by Judge Morris A. Soper of Baltimore, United States judge for the Fourth judicial circuit, for publication in response to a request made to him by a state-wide special committee of the Maryland State Bar Association. The alterations made during the legislative process were, on the contrary, quite substantial.

There were numerous weighty objections to the Bond commission plan as finally evolved for presentation to the legislature. The foremost of these was the elimination of primary elections for the judges, and nominating judges, and placing this in the hands of the governor. Another was that it provided for state-wide election of judges. Still another was that there would be a reduction in the number of circuit judges in the appellate courts and consolidation of the Baltimore courts into one superior court. These aroused so much opposition, however, that they were not brought to a vote in the General Assembly.

The appeals court reorganization measure, a constitutional proposal, reduces the number of judges from eight to five, two to be chosen from Baltimore and three from the counties; release these judges from nisi prius work, preserves the existing system of making nominations and retains the division of the state into three circuits having appellate court judges elected by state-wide vote. In addition, what Judge Soper terms a "forward step of great importance," there is a provision constituting the chief judge of the appeals court as administrative head of the state judicial system and empowering him to call county judges to sit on the appeals court and to designate an appellate judge or any of the trial judges to sit in any of the trial courts other than his own in cases of emergency. The trial judges will be means of preventing confusion of cases, be required to report from time to time upon their judicial work and the business of their courts. These are wise provisions.

Under the proposed amendment, four judicial circuits would be created, namely: the First comprising the Eastern Shore area with nine counties; the Second, comprising seven counties of the Central and Southern Maryland area; the Third, comprising seven counties of Western Maryland and the Fourth, embracing Baltimore city.

The original unsatisfactory plan of having judges appointed in the first place by the governor was properly thrown out the window and that omission leaves the present method of choosing judges in the state undisturbed.

It was necessary in drafting the measure that the tenure of the existing members of the appeals court who were elected to their positions before the bill passed the legislature be protected. This appears to have been done by limiting the bill to the sitting judges. Next January, the court would be reduced to seven judges, including five from the four new appellate judicial circuits into which the state would be divided and two additional judges from the present court who would serve until they reach the age of 70 and retire in accordance with the requirements of the constitution. It happens that Judge Grason, of the Baltimore Third circuit, and Judge Melvin, of Anne Arundel county, will reach retirement age before the expiration of their respective elected terms. In the meantime they would continue to be chief judges of their circuits and serve as additional judges of the court of appeals.

Thus, six of the present judges would remain on the court and a new man would be added for Baltimore if the amendment is approved. Judge Bailey, of Wisconsin, and Judge Capper, of Allegheny, would retire from the court but, Judge Soper points out, "no injustice to them is involved since both of them were recently appointed after the amendment bill had passed the legislature and with full knowledge of its terms. Their present positions as chief judges of their respective circuits will expire January 1, 1945, but they can be and doubtless will be appointed circuit judges therein. Both of these judges favor the passage of the amendment. Before their elevation to the bench, Judge Capper was a member of the Bond commission and Judge Bailey was chairman of the Bar Association committee appointed to sponsor the reorganization plan before the legislature."

The fears expressed by Judge Samuel K. Dennis, of the supreme bench of Baltimore city, that a five-judge appellate court would be inadequate, are dispelled by Judge Soper by the citation of surveys showing that in the last four years the average number of cases decided fell from the preceding five-year average of 143 to only 112 a year, which he contends can easily be handled by five judges who are relieved of nisi prius work. Whether the impact of the war has thus affected the business is not indicated.

As for the number of trial judges, it is noted that while at present the counties have twenty-five (including the seven chief judges) and Baltimore twenty, after December 31 this year the counties would have twenty-four (temporarily twenty-five) and Baltimore thirteen. Only one more county than at present.

e. Kent county, would be without a resident judge.

Thus, it appears that most of the objections resting against the original Bond commission plan—that is, the plan as originally submitted to the last legislature—have been removed, having been eliminated by the measure was under process of enactment. Some other objections may be found as the measure comes into discussion for decision on its adoption at the November election. If any are detected they should be forthcoming in order that the people will have the benefit of a thorough examination of the court change. It is queer that copies of the enacted measure have not been distributed.

The chief objective of the measure is that of relieving the appeals judges of nisi prius work and on that there seems to have been general agreement even among those who objected to various provisions of the Bond plan, some of which, as this newspaper declared, were exceedingly objectionable. The desirability of this is substantiated by the information and advice sought by the Bar Association committee from the chief justices of the other forty-seven states of the union. These disclosed that in forty-two states the top court exercises appellate jurisdiction only, while the remaining six only Maryland and Delaware impose regular trial work on the appellate court judges. It is significant that not a single judge of the high courts of the other states favored the preformance of trial and appellate work by the same judges, although some of them hesitated to express an opinion because of the lack of experience with such a system.

Dictatorships Improbable With a World Free Press

THE PEOPLE do not desire war and all peoples would discourage it if the real causes or motives for war were exposed through daily publication of news free from influences of self-interest," said John S. Knight, president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, in explaining his appointment to a committee of American editors to seek international free press agreements after the war.

Mr. Knight was acting in conformity with a resolution of the society. And the resolution was adopted only after canvassing the opinions of American editors and discussing the question at a meeting of the editors. It may be regarded as substantially representing the faith of the American people in the efficacy of free discussion as an element in government resting on the consent of the governed.

American newspapermen abroad have protested for years that they are obliged to conform to the press control policy of the country from which they report, instead of being allowed to work to the standards of the American press. Many of them have written on the evil—that a dictator-minded leader of the Hitler stripe is to bring the press under control. He first forbids certain articles, then takes the final step and dictates what shall be said. In all the Axis countries and Russia there was no semblance of a free press before the war. In Germany, Italy and Japan the people were keyed to war by deception. Had the newspapermen of the Axis countries been free to interpret the attitude of the free countries toward the common people of the Axis countries, the dictators would have been disarmed. In all probability, there would have been no war.

Lieut. Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, deputy chief of staff, will not predict when the war will end, which indicates that he has none of the qualifications of a war commentator.

Candidates who advocate balanced budgets may have overlooked the fact that many younger voters do not know what they are talking about.

An implied plank in the Republican platform is a promise that every American boy will again have a chance to become president.

Hitler promised to throw the Allies out of France in nine hours. His pitching arm must have developed a Charley horse.

They Stopped at Minden

By MARSHAL MASLIN

More than eighty years ago a family made its home in a place along the Overland Trail to California. I do not know just how many there were in that family but certainly a father and a mother and some running children, and perhaps a couple of sitting ones who rode in the great cracking wagon. They were going to California, going to the land where one could pick up gold almost anywhere in the hills—great chunks of it. They were going to a land of fabled fortune.

Well, my state suits me well and here many of the dreams of those pioneers had come true. But while I would not live anywhere but in California and I envy no man who lives elsewhere, still I like to think of this family that never reached California but stopped in a little valley along the way.

The family, traveling steadily, came to a wide, green place that was pleasant in the sunlight and home-like in the shade. There they stopped. Here was a good place to feed their horses, so they stopped for awhile. And after a few weeks they decided they would go no further to the west at all. Later they might but not just then. They would stay in that valley and raise hay and sell it to other travelers who were going west and would need feed for their horses.

They stayed at Minden in Nevada and their children stayed there, too. And even the grandchildren remained in Minden. They were happy there and did not believe they would be happier elsewhere, even in California. And I guess the grandchildren are much as the old folks—they love their valley and do not see why they should go away from a place where they are happy.

If you are restless unhappy and do not know what you want, perhaps you will not admire these people, but it seems to me that that migrant family was wiser than most of us. They sought something and recognized it when they found it. And many of us as we travel must pass many Mindens without knowing we do. We do not know enough to stop when we reach the place where we will be happy—but that family knew. Minden was theirs and that's what I call success.

LITTLE HANS AND THE LEAKY DIKE

Brief Platform, Suggested by Roosevelt, Is Held Impractical for the Democrats

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, July 6.—Rumor has it—and a well founded one—that President Roosevelt has suggested the writing of a Democratic national platform of such brevity that it can be memorized by campaign speakers.

As a campaign stunt, this is a good idea. But as a practical matter in vote-getting and party harmony, the device may be seriously questioned.

The criticism will come from many directions. First, the Republicans will say that the Democratic convention was just a formality, that it had no independence and was not even permitted to write a platform. All the various groups and organizations that have been accustomed to getting planks in the party platform—and many of them have good causes—will go away disappointed. They will be told that just because of the president's whim it was impossible to write a normal party platform.

Second, the Republicans will be able to ask constantly during the campaign, "what is the Democratic position?" The Republicans will point to specific planks in their own platform and then will be able to say that the Democratic position is exactly the opposite—nothing has been said and nothing was permitted to be said at the Democratic convention on those subjects.

Revolt Likely To Grow

As for the southern revolt, it will probably be intensified as a consequence of the abbreviated platform idea. Certain southern delegations are preparing to ask for particular planks and if the resolutions committee of the Democratic national convention has no authority to include any plank except the one dictated by the president, this will not help matters for the incumbent administration in the South. For one thing, it may give the Texas delegation the excuse it wants to divert the electoral votes from the Roosevelt column.

If the president insists upon the idea of having something that all campaign speakers can memorize, perhaps a hundred words stating the objects and purposes of the Democratic administration, this can be adequately fulfilled by writing a brief preamble to the platform itself.

Appendix Is Suggested

There is no reason why campaign speakers could not memorize the preamble. If "preamble" is too important-looking, then there is no reason why the platform itself could not be brief but supplemented with the Roosevelt column.

JAP BLASTER

PICTURED after his arrival in the United States is Commander Joseph Clifton, Paducah, Ky., skipper of air group Twelve which has just been brought home for reassignment after a year of fighting in the Pacific theater. The group ran up the following score: 102 planes destroyed; seventy-eight planes damaged; 104,000 tons of shipping sunk; and 198,300 tons damaged.

an appendix in which all the various platform planks customarily written would be inserted.

Despite the general criticism of platform planks as being either vague or straddling, they do serve a useful purpose under the American political system. It has been widely recognized that some platform planks are the result of compromise and that the nominee himself is permitted to interpret his own position when the campaign develops. But there are other platform planks which have a world of meaning to Congress. Thus, a member of the Senate and House may have in his state a controversy over an issue and the platform plank will assist in preventing opposition from within one's own party. In many a primary campaign, an opponent has been squelched when he has tried to change the party position. Mere reference to the party plank has been enough to prevent such opposition on a particular issue.

Second, the Republicans will be able to ask constantly during the campaign, "what is the Democratic position?" The Republicans will point to specific planks in their own platform and then will be able to say that the Democratic position is exactly the opposite—nothing has been said and nothing was permitted to be said at the Democratic convention on those subjects.

Spiritual Urge Is A Postwar Need, Babson Declares

BABSON PARK, Mass., July 7.—Watches without springs, motors without gas, or locks without keys are like us. This is the situation today with the Committee on Economic Development and most committees which are studying postwar employment plans. It also explains one trouble with our schools and colleges. The committee and colleges are neglecting the spiritual urge which the Prophet Isaiah wrote about in the first three verses of his Chapter 31.

Springs without machines, gas without motors and keys without locks are like us of little use. This is the situation today with most churches and preachers. They fail to emphasize the scientific basis for their teachings and also fail to apply spiritual power to practical everyday life. Any religion which does not express itself in right living and social relations is of little use.

The postwar planning committees and present-day educational and religious institutions need to recognize both the importance of spiritual power and just social relations. To continue to ignore such things will certainly result in 10,000,000 to 15,000,000 unemployed in the United States after the short postwar boom is over.

Land, labor and capital are material, while integrity, initiative and inspiration are spiritual powers. They may either be inherited or acquired, but at all hazards they must be recognized in successful planning. This applies both to national planning and to the planning of our own personal lives as individuals.

Even land, labor and capital can be used to destroy or to construct, according to the integrity, initiative and inspiration of those who have the land, labor and capital.

Hence, I call these three spiritual powers the "Three I's of Success." I have in mind both individual and national success.

Spiritual vs. Radio Waves

When discussing the above with industrialists and labor leaders, they agree with my statements; but they come back to me as follows:—"How can this spiritual power—or God's Rays as you call it—be developed and harnessed? It is not enough for preachers, priests and rabbis to talk about it, let them show us how to get it and use it." It is probably true that we have generalized too much and too long about spiritual power. The time has come to be practical.

C. F. Kettering—vice president in charge of research of General Motors—once brought to my attention that electricity was talked about as far back as 2,500 years ago. It was in 600 B. C. that a Greek philosopher, Thales of Miletus, found that by rubbing amber he could develop a force to pick up straws. Even 300 years ago experiments were made by William Gilbert in England and von Guericke in Germany which caused electricity to be talked about as the "coming power." Yet nothing practical was attempted until Frank-lyn's experiments were made by him in his toy motor in 1825. Then came Morse with his telegraph, Bell with his telephone, Edison with his lamp and Marconi with radio waves.

Encourage Spiritual Adventures

It truly seems that the harnessing of spiritual waves—the seeds of integrity, initiative and inspiration—is where electricity was 100 years ago. If so, the greatest need of the post-war era is to teach people where to find spiritual power and how to use it. (Mind you! This does not necessarily mean describing what it is. We do not even yet know what electricity is. We, however, do know how to generate it and use it.)

The Open Church Movement—in which I am greatly interested—is a step in this direction. Its purpose is to get people into the churches alone by themselves not only on Sundays but at any time during the week when they feel the need for private meditation and prayer. The Christian Science church, the New Thought Associations, the Unity groups, the Daily Meditation Centers at San Antonio and elsewhere and Dr. Frank N. D. Buchman are all talking about spiritual power and what it can do. The great need, however, is for carefully planned and executed laboratory data which will command greater respect than mere words.

June Graduates Attention

Those who have just graduated from high school and colleges should especially heed the thoughts I have presented. You may have got marks of one hundred per cent in every subject and still be as useless as "sounding brass or a tinkling cymbal." You may well find yourselves priceless watches without springs, twelve-cylinder motors without gas or burglar-proof locks without keys. In fact, I feel so strongly about this entire matter that I believe the greatest of all postwar needs is a spiritual awakening. If so, we all should make our primary task the discovering of methods of harnessing God's Rays which are now all about us but practically unused. Then the greatest changes ahead may not be in connection with aviation or plastics or chemistry but in connection with those intangible forces which develop integrity, initiative and inspiration.

Nazis Are Unable To Mass Forces Against Invaders

By CENTRAL PRESS

WASHINGTON—Military sources in Washington are now convinced the Germans have not made a general counter attack in Normandy because, since D-Day, they have been simply unable to amass the required amounts of men and materials.

This opinion is in sharp contrast to published statements of the Allied leaders when the invasion was launched—that a general counterattack must be expected at any time designed to attempt to hurt the Allies into the English channel.

In the early days of the invasion, it was said, the Germans could have checked the Allied tide with comparative small numbers of men and guns. Now, however, a large army would be required, and its chances of success would be much more slim.

The competent military source—who declined to be identified—went so far as to say that with the capture of Cherbourg, the Germans have been forced to abandon any plans or hopes they may have had to sweep the Cotentin peninsula free of Allied armies. All they can do now is to prevent them from spilling over into the rest of France.

Gifts Borne by Wallace

When Vice President Henry A. Wallace left Washington for China, it was disclosed, he took with him a big bag of gifts. These included numerous packages of scientific instruments, books, educational films and agricultural seed.

The materials were assembled in Washington by the State department as part of a program of cultural relations with Chinese universities and technical centers.

Four Big Fleets

Look for virtual non-stop operations by powerful sections of America's mighty Pacific fleet against Japan bases and shipping from now on. Especially since our navy dealt a smashing blow at the Japanese fleet June 19 off the Philippines.

Tip-off on the size of the American armada now roaming the Pacific is the fact that it has been broken up into at least four separate fleets as well as some task forces.

First on the list is the Fifth fleet, which spearheaded the Mariana invasion. Next is the Third fleet, under Admiral William F. Halsey.

In the Southwest Pacific there is the Seventh fleet, commanded by Vice Admiral Thomas C. Kinkaid, hero of the sweeps against the Japs on Attu and Kiska in the Aleutians. The Ninth fleet in the north Pacific now is under Vice Admiral Frank J. Fletcher.

Apparently any one of these can operate alone, or they can team up for a really powerful thrust. The one fleet can go back for repairs, refitting or a rest while the other three carry on against the Japs' first team.

It was Admiral Raymond A. Spruance's Fifth fleet which tackled the powerful Jap fleet off the Philippines in one of America's greatest naval victories of the war.

Tril Interest Lags

There is no longer any crowding at the press tables in the mass edition trial courtroom—in the capital.

When the trial started several weeks ago more than fifty reporters and special writers elbowed each other for better points of observation.

Since then most of the special correspondents have been recalled, apparently because their editors thought they could be writing more interesting stories.

Many seats at the press table are empty, despite the fact that only "one principal witness" has been heard, and prosecutors say there are at least 200 to be heard.

Buzz-Bomb Blitz Is Wasted Effort, Simpson Asserts

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Associated Press War Analyst

The outstanding fact about the terrorist Nazi buzz-bomb blitz against London, aside from its heavy toll of casualties, is that it is wasted effort so far as the effect on British morale is concerned. By the testimony of Prime Minister Churchill and American observers in England, it has stirred British public opinion only to demands for counter-bombing of non-military objectives in Germany.

Churchill gave no intimation of additional ways and means being devised to deal with the robot bomb barrage. But the mere fact that he took the time to reveal the casualties inflicted and the fact that London is the Nazi target may mean that a program for offensive, not defensive, action to end this nuisance has been worked out. His reticence as to counter measures implies that.

No Military Value

Churchill made no effort to minimize the seriousness of the situation for Londoners. He also made it quite clear, however, that in the judgment of the Allied high military command the robot plane bomb attack has small military significance.

As now disclosed, the Nazi buzz-bomb device seems to be of strictly limited usefulness except for its indicated prime purpose of starting a retaliatory long-range bombing of London in answer to Allied air blasting of Berlin and other German cities.

Range About 150 Miles

The indicated range of these unmanned shot-gun rocket bombs is 150 miles or less. If the launching installations are all sighted at London, as Churchill indicated, those still in action are all within the sweep of a 125 to 150-mile circle struck from the center of London. Such a circle would cut the extreme tip of the Cherbourg peninsula, now in Allied hands, pass close to Le Havre, cut some seventy-five miles deep in France behind Calais and reach the coast again in Belgium close to the borders of Holland.

Whatever other ways and means may be projected for dealing with the buzz-bomb bombardment of London, seizure or isolation of the Calais coastal area would be a conclusive answer.

Berlin can only expect speeding up of Allied plans to knock the robot weapon out of action at its base.

Tom Dewey: He's Careful and Serious and Likes To Work Hard

RELAXING at their Pawling, N. Y., farm home are Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, his wife, two sons, Tom, Jr., and John, and pup, "Canute."

By NORRIS PAXTON
AP Features
ALBANY, N. Y.—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, Republican presidential nominee, is many things to many people, but to those who know him best he is a hard-working, careful executive who maps a course of action and then follows through tenaciously.

An attorney who won his first public acclaim as a successful prosecutor of New York city racketeers, Dewey approaches any problem cautiously. Like a good lawyer, he first sorts facts, then prepares his "brief," although frequently not on paper.

Dewey is an athletic, youthful appearing man of 42, with a naturally serious nature, a pleasing baritone voice and an intense manner.

He studied law before he turned to law. Friends say he could have been an actor, that he is a jovial and companionable friend on a party. He dresses conservatively, usually in a blue suit, personally trims his heavy black mustache, plays golf and enjoys an occasional drink—usually Scotch.

Dewey is careful about appearances. It is unlikely that campaign pictures will feature him pitching hay on his Pawling, N. Y., farm or at a locomotive throttle. Photographers say he has a "dead pan."

He works hard and likes it. Not an early riser, he breakfasts leisurely, scans the newspapers frequently studies some state business before arriving at his office between 10 and 11 a. m.

Often, he works late and the lights in the executive chamber usually are bright after those in other Capitol offices are extinguished. During the day, he seldom leaves for luncheon and favored callers sometimes are invited to share his tray.

The Deweys, who came to the executive mansion in 1943, entertain relatively little. They have not given the usual receptions for legislators and other Capitol folk.

Flying German Bombs Taking Terrific Toll

Churchill Reveals Facts to Public

By TOM YARBROUGH

LONDON, July 6 (AP)—Prime Minister Winston Churchill, in a statement which he described as "brutally frank," told the world today that German flying bombs in three weeks have killed 2,752 persons, seriously injured about 8,000, and have done extensive damage, primarily in London, which he disclosed as the previously-censored but obvious target of the enemy weapon.

One Death Per Bomb

This was the toll from 2,754 of the winged missiles—an average of one death per bomb—but "it would be a mistake to underestimate the serious character of this particular form of attack," Churchill said in a lengthy statement to the House of Commons, which had demanded it.

He raised the possibility that London might be attacked in the future by giant rocket bombs of a different type, on which the Germans have been working.

Speaking without his usual oratorical sparkle, Churchill did not try to sugar-coat the hard facts. He did not claim to have the "answer" to the flying bomb, and promised only that "everything humanly possible" was being done to combat it.

Already, he disclosed, the Allied air forces have expended 50,000 tons of bombs on the launching sites and experimental headquarters in France and Germany, and "a considerable portion of our flying power has been diverted for months from other forms of offensive activity."

When he pointed out that from day to day the fatalities caused by the bombs had averaged one for each bomb launched, members of the House exclaimed "very satisfactory!"

The prime minister, however, went on to disclose that removal of non-essential persons from London was not being discouraged and that children already were being sent from the danger area.

Parliament To Remain
But he raised and demolished a hypothetical suggestion that Parliament should move from London, exclaiming, "here we began the war and here we will see it ended," and made it clear that the bulk of Londoners would simply have to "take the flying-bomb assaults as they did the earlier 'blitz'."

One point he stressed vehemently. "I do not want there to be any misunderstanding on this point, that we shall not allow the battle operations in Normandy nor the attacks we are making against special targets in Germany to suffer. They come first."

"We must fit in our own domestic arrangements into the general scheme of war operations. There can be no question of allowing the slightest weakening of the battle in order to diminish in scale the injuries which, though they may inflict grievous suffering on many people and change to some extent the normal and regular life and industry of London, will never stand between the British nation and their duty in the van of a victorious and avenging world."

John P. Harvey Still Aboard Coast Guard Boat

Son of Midlothian Man Erroneously Reported a "D-Day" Survivor

BOARD COAST GUARD RESCUE CUTTER 40 AT ITS BASE IN ENGLAND, June 27 (Delayed)—Erroneously reported a D-day survivor himself, Chief Boatswain's Mate John P. Harvey, of Glen Burnie, Maryland, is still aboard this coast guard rescue cutter, and still aiding actual survivors from sunken ships. "On D-day," related Chief Harvey, "our cutter saved fifteen unconscious sailors from a sinking ship. But somewhere, the story became twisted, and we coast guardsmen were reported as survivors. My wife, Ruth, wrote that I was announced 'safe somewhere in England,' and she said, 'I'll have a lot of explaining to do someday.'"

Since the invasion of the French coast, the coast guard chief petty officer's craft has made several trips to the Normandy shore. Despite recent storms, the cutter, nicknamed the "Jiggs," maintained a constant vigil for ships less fortunate in weathering the squalls.

Chief Harvey enlisted in the coast guard in September, 1939, and after taking his training at the Curtis Bay station, served aboard the CGC Pontchartrain until that cutter was turned over to the British in 1941. Since then he has been performing anti-submarine patrols, with considerable time aboard the eighty-three-foot, wooden "sub-busters" comprising this rescue flotilla.

Son of Anthony Harvey, Midlothian, Maryland, who has been judge and sheriff of Allegany county, the coast guardsman has one daughter, Beverly Jean, aged seven months.

Harvey wears campaign ribbons for the American and European theaters of war, and also the American Defense and Coast Guard Good Conduct ribbons.

Hit-Run and Reckless Driving Charges Cost Motorist $30 in Fines

Pleading guilty to a charge of failing to stop after an accident in front of Dresser's store at Long at 2:30 p. m. yesterday, Maeford LaRue, Frostburg, was fined $25 and costs last night by Magistrate Roy S. Bowman at Cresaptown. LaRue also entered a plea of guilty to a reckless driving charge and was fined $5 and costs.

State Trooper Ira G. Unger, who entered the charges, said LaRue's car struck a parked truck in front of the store at Long and failed to stop. The trooper added that LaRue also ignored a warning signal of state roads commission employees who were maintaining one-way traffic while they patched Route 40 at Long and narrowly missed hitting them with his car.

LaRue was arrested for Unger by Frostburg police about 5 p. m., the trooper said.

Drainage Data On Potomac Is Received Here

Conditions Are Reviewed and Prospects of Sur- vey Outlined

The Geological Survey of the U. S. Department of Interior has released publicly for the first time a review and outlook of meteorological and runoff conditions in the drainage basin of the North Branch of the Potomac river at and above Cumberland.

The report, being furnished to members of the Upper Potomac River Board, the Upper Potomac River Commission, city and county officials and industries, covers June and July. A similar report will be issued monthly.

The flow, or runoff, of the North Branch at Cumberland has been measured for a number of years and, while the record is not long enough for best results, it is believed that information in regard to precipitation and stream flow for the area above Cumberland for the month previous to current month, and the flow to be expected during a current month, depending on precipitation, will be of value and interest to industries especially and to everyone in general, the survey announces.

Active For Some Time

The Geological Survey in cooperation with the State of Maryland, the Upper Potomac River Board, and other cooperating agencies, has been measuring the flow of Maryland streams at gauging stations for a number of years. Recording gauges which made a continuous record of the stages or height of the water in the rivers are installed in structures, usually of reinforced concrete, located on the banks of the stream. There are several of these in and around Cumberland.

The gauge house on the Maryland side at Paw Paw, W. Va., is one of the highest in the United States.

By means of the records collected at these gauging stations the flow of the rivers at the gauges is obtained at all stages, including floods and droughts. The records of floods are the basis for plans for their control and regulation. The records of the flow of Wills Creek and of the North Branch at Cumberland during the floods of 1936 and other years were used in the preparation of plans for flood control at Cumberland.

In those localities where gauging stations have been operated for a sufficient number of years, information has been developed which may be utilized to indicate the effect of precipitation on stream flow, and the Geological Survey plans to prepare and regularly release about the first of the month a brief summary of the amount of precipitation and stream flow for selected areas for the previous month and an outlook for the current month covering the stream flow that may be expected from the areas, depending on whether precipitation during the month is normal or below normal.

June Above Normal

The report of the stream flow and meteorological conditions in June is as follows:

The mean daily flow of the North Branch Potomac River at Cumberland in June was 623 cubic feet per second, 103 per cent of the normal flow for June. The flow was less than normal for 19 days during the month. The flow during the minor rise from June 24-27 was sufficient to increase the average flow for the month to a little better than normal.

The momentary maximum and minimum flows were 3,700 and 310 cubic feet per second, June 24 and June 14, respectively.

The total precipitation on the basin above Cumberland in June as recorded by the U. S. Weather Bureau was 3.84 inches, 82 per cent of the normal precipitation for June. The average daily temperature was 70 degrees, 103 per cent of normal.

The following is a report of the outlook for runoff in July:

Under normal meteorological conditions, the average runoff of streams for July in the area is expected to be somewhat better than the July normal. Under the most adverse conditions, with little or no precipitation, the flow of streams is expected to be about 30 per cent of normal.

B. & O. To Eliminate
Agencies at 4 Points

BALTIMORE, July 6 (AP)—Agencies at four Maryland points will be eliminated after July 17, attorneys for the Baltimore and Ohio railroad notified the public service commission today.

Both the agencies and passenger service will be discontinued at Brentwood, Lime Kiln and Keedysville. At Frederick Junction the station will be placed on a non-agency basis.

Brentwood business will be transferred to Hyattsville, Lime Kiln business will be handled at Frederick and Keedysville business will go to Hagerstown.

The reason given by the company for the change was the manpower shortage. The Public Service commission was informed that notices of the changes were being posted in the stations affected.

Pet Show Will Be Held Tonight In Frostburg

Recreation Association Is Sponsoring Event at College Field

By RUDOLPH NICKEL
FROSTBURG, July 6.—A pet show, sponsored by the Frostburg Recreation Association, will be held Friday (tonight) 7 p. m. at the athletic field of Frostburg State Teachers College. John "Chip" Grindle, playground director, who announced the show last week, reports that entries so far include cats, dogs, chickens, rabbits, birds, including parrots, and a fox. So far, forty pets have been entered by their young owners.

Because of the unexpected interest in the pet show, Director Grindle announced today that boys and girls who have not been taking part in playground activities so far, may bring their pets no later than Friday, 6 p. m., so the judges may have an opportunity to look them over before the blue ribbons are awarded.

Grindle is arranging to have the city sprinkler in operation Friday. Children may find out the time and place by calling at the college athletic field Friday morning. Bathing suits should be worn by all who wish to enjoy the showers.

The proposed dance, for older boys and girls, scheduled for Friday evening at Beall elementary school, has been cancelled. Grindle stated, because of the lack of interest among those for whom the dance was intended. Up until Thursday morning only a few couples expressed themselves as desirous of attending.

It is suitable centers can be located in the town where shade is available, the Recreation committee plans to sponsor story telling hours one morning each week for the rest of the summer. Persons knowing of such places, are asked to contact Grindle or any member of the program committee which includes Dr. Stanley Kerns, Mrs. Ellen Harvey, Guy Mallow, Mrs. Joseph Winner and Dr. John Cooper.

Price of Wheat Shows Decline

COLLEGE PARK, Md., July 6 (AP)—Joseph H. Blandford, chairman of the Maryland State Agricultural Adjustment Agency, reported today a seasonal decline in the price of wheat of the 1944 crop, but he said it did not represent the effect of a surplus market situation.

Blandford urged farmers not to sell wheat from the present crop for prices lower than the government loan figure. Government loans were available to Maryland farmers on wheat at the quality usually produced in the state at prices ranging from $1.40 to $1.47 per bushel, dependent on grade of wheat and place of storage, he said.

Vinson Approves Higher Oil Prices

WASHINGTON, July 6 (AP)—Fred M. Vinson, director of economic stabilization, today approved a premium price plan permitting increases ranging generally from twenty to thirty-five cents per barrel in maximum prices of crude oil produced from fields averaging less than nine barrels per well daily.

The plan involves a government subsidy. The Defense Supplies Corporation, which announced the plan yesterday, will defray its costs, estimated by Vinson at $50,000,000 annually. Vinson said the plan will not involve increases in prices of products to the public.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pain, leg pain, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning suggest that there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's. Plus, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Plus.

Maryland Farmland Prices Increase

BALTIMORE, July 6 (AP)—Maryland prices for farmland have risen thirty-six per cent since Pearl Harbor, and the back-to-the soil movement has assumed wartime boom proportions, state farm leaders disclosed today.

Concern over the boom was expressed by the farm leaders who said that of the approximately 3,000,000 acres of farmland in the state, nearly 2,000,000 acres need the contour cultivation and careful drainage that only experienced farmers can handle.

Samuel H. DeVault, head of the department of agricultural economics and farm management at the University of Maryland, and Thomas Roy Brooks, master of the Maryland State Grange warned prospective buyers that farming required experienced, capital and hard work.

County and state committees are organized in Maryland to advise farm purchasers on agriculture problems and land values, DeVault said, adding that study of the current land boom was underway.

Motorcycle Squad Ready for Action

BALTIMORE, July 6 (AP)—The first motorcycle squad of Third Service Command military police who will aid the state troopers of Pennsylvania, Maryland and Virginia in enforcing traffic laws among military personnel, is expected to take to the roads about July 17, Maj. Gen. Philip Hayes, commanding general, said today.

General Hayes said agreements had been reached with the governors and police heads of the three states, whereby work of the army and state patrolmen would be co-ordinated.

"Our men have been empowered to stop any army car, driven by soldiers or civilians, any civilian car driven by a serviceman or carrying servicemen as passengers, and buses or taxis transporting servicemen, if they are violating traffic or speed laws," he added.

The army patrolmen cannot arrest civilians and the army will not prosecute them. However the MPs will co-operate with the state police and the OPA to report flagrant violations. The army will handle punishment of military drivers.

General Hayes stated that the purpose of the new plan is to "promote safe driving, thereby saving lives, prolonging the life of vehicles and tires and conserving gasoline."

"I feel that Maryland's possibilities in regard to national and international aviation are unlimited," the governor declared.

Talks by Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for president, and Darlington Hoopes are scheduled for NBC at 10:45 in the Friday night speech hour.

We wish to express our sincere thanks to our friends and neighbors for their kindness and sympathy during the illness and death of my husband and father,
John E. McGowan, who passed away on July 4, 1944. We are grateful for the many floral tributes, and the kind words of sympathy and comfort which we received from all. We also thank Rev. Harry Pearson and Mrs. Anna Plummer & Children, Frederick, Md.
